THE KITCHEN MIRACLE

The kitchen was a mess. Pots and pans were piled up in the sink, spoons and spatulas were scattered on the counter, and knives and forks were stuck in the cutting board. The only thing that was clean was the oven, where a delicious smell of roast chicken wafted out. But no one was there to enjoy it. The cook had left in a hurry, forgetting to turn off the oven and the stove.

The cooking utensils were worried. They knew that if the oven got too hot, it could start a fire. So they decided to take action. They formed a team of brave volunteers: a ladle, a whisk, a grater, a rolling pin, a colander, a corkscrew, a can opener, and a pair of tongs. They used their skills and tools to turn off the oven and the stove. They also moved the roast chicken to a platter and covered it with tin foil to keep it warm. When the cook came back in panic he saw that the oven was off and the chicken was on a platter.

He never found out what had happened and is telling the story to this day.
